2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance. The closest prior art of record failed to teach or suggest, a bottom piece with a circumference, that forms a pencil tip and a knurled surface around the circumferential area of the bottom piece and is releasably attached to the bottom end of the generally elongated body; a releasable cap that is removable from the top end of the generally elongated body to secure the plurality of pills within the generally elongated body; a digital clockface that is housed within the releasable cap to indicate time; a plurality of alarm components that are integral with the digital clockface and the alarm that is also housed within the releasable cap; and a LCD light that indicates that the plurality of alarm components have been activated. Therefore, in combination with all the other limitations claims 1-8 are allowable.
